

Ryan Healy is a Co-Founder of Brazen Careerist, a venture backed start-up company that helps companies locate hard-to-find candidates. Recently he was named one of the country's 25 top Human Resource thought leaders by World at Work and Accenture. He is a recognized workplace expert for the young workforce, appearing in print publications including The Wall Street Journal, The New York Times and Business Week and he has appeared as a spokesperson for the new generation of workers – Generation Y, on CBS's 60 Minutes, 20/20, and National Public Radio. He is also a featured keynote speaker on Human Resources, generations, social media and career related topics.